Meijer stores have almost anything you could be looking for, from a full selection of food, to clothes, furniture, electronics, and home necessities, all at a pretty good price. They have weekly sales on food that are very good. This is a great one-stop-shop!

Kroger is more of a traditional American grocery store, selling mainly food products. They also have weekly sales, but only to shoppers with a special card. In order to take advantage of these sales, before you begin your first shopping trip, make sure to sign up for a card in the customer service area, usually at the front of the store.

L&L stores are traditional grocery stores, selling high quality meats. Prices are often more expensive than at other East Lansing stores.

While Aldi is fairly far from campus, it has some of the lowest prices on food that you will find in the area. It is a small store and nothing is name brand, but the food is good and very cheap. If you have a car, it's worth the trip!

The closest grocery store to campus! However, while Goodrich Shop-Rite is nearby and has a pleasant family atmosphere, expect higher prices than nationwide stores such as Meijer or Kroger.
